

Picture This! Human Crane Feeling the Strain

 We're not certain who is in the more frightening position—the obviously straining person holding this dangling worker by the waist of his pants or the person who is being held. Keeping a grip on this worker is tiring enough, let alone having the strength to pull him back up through the window after he is finished performing whatever task he is doing. If this worker falls headfirst even a short distance, the consequences could be tragic. (Internet)