Raise Requests Linked to Double Murders

A car dealer in the Atlanta area stands charged with two counts of murder after two employees were shot dead. The dealership owner, who turned himself in two days after workers Inga Contreras, 25, and Martynas Simokaitus, 28, died, told police he was under considerable financial stress and snapped after the two asked for raises – something they had done several times before.

Facing the murder charges is Rolandas Milinavicius, 38.
